THE DAILY FREEMAN,

PUBLISHED EVERY MORNING.

By HORATIO FOWLES,

Newkirk Building, Division St.,
City of Kingston, (Rondout, N. Y.)

The DAILY FREEMAN will be an Independent Republican Journal, with an opinion on every subject, firm in its advocacy of freedom, equal rights and just laws for all men; outspoken in its opposition to the abuses and follies of the day, in favor of progress and improvement everywhere, and especially devoted to the interests of the City of Kingston and vicinity.

The Telegraphic News Department will be complete and well supplied, the FREEMAN being a MEMBER OF THE NEW YORK ASSOCIATED PRESS, through which it receives and is enabled to present a full summary of intelligence from all parts of the world every morning.

Local News and especially City, Town and County News will receive special attention, paid correspondents being employed in all parts of the county. All news received from other than our regular correspondents will be paid for if useful. Full reports of all important meetings will be presented, and in every respect the DAILY FREEMAN will be a First-Class Paper and a worthy companion of the WEEKLY FREEMAN.

Commercial and Stock Reports carefully corrected every day.

THE DAILY FREEMAN will furnish for the breakfast table of its patrons the News from All Parts of the World up to 3 o'clock, A. M.

Terms—Six Dollars per year, payable in advance. If collected weekly, Fifteen Cents per week. Single copies four cents.

Advertisements will be displayed as ordered, and charged according to the space occupied, measured in inches down the column.

HORATIO FOWLES,
Editor, Proprietor and Publisher.

THE WEEKLY FREEMAN, a large, well-filled paper, will be sent to subscribers at $2 per annum, payable in advance. HORATIO FOWLES, Editor, Proprietor and Publisher.

JOHN PRINTING in all its branches Promptly, Cheaply and Neatly Done. By the use of STEAM POWER and a large force we are enabled to turn out work at rates that distances all competition. We have facilities for printing Law Cases unequalled between New York and Albany.

The Friends' Meeting.

RACHAEL HICKS ON "ORIGINAL SIN."

Nearly everybody has heard the story of the sailor who said he liked the Episcopal church service because there you had a chance "to jaw back." Such being his idea of worship, there is no reason to suppose that the jolly "follower of the sea" would have been much edified or gone into raptures over the ceremony or rather the lack of ceremony at the Friends' meeting house Sunday morning, for very little was said by either the preacher or the people.

The meeting was held in the modest little edifice on Main street, and the hour named was eleven o'clock. Fearful that the church might be overcrowded and he not be able to get a seat, our reporter went rather early and arrived at the door when but few persons were inside. He entered the vestibule and found the sexton clean, calm and collected, standing there in solemn silence.

"To the left," said the church keeper.

"What's that?" inquired the reporter.

"But I prefer going to the right," answered the Times man, who, like most newspaper men, was inclined to be obstinate and contrary, and he proceeded in that direction. Now he doesn't know exactly how it occurred, but in a moment he was sitting inside the church and on the left.

When he recovered himself he looked around and readily saw how it was, the left was devoted entirely to men, the women occupying exclusively the right side of the meeting house. Very gradually the congregation gathered, a man and wife presented themselves at the door and according to the commands received, went one way, she the other. Many strange gentlemen coming to the church, started to go in the wrong way, but their error was quickly corrected and they came to the left, yet our reporter noticed to his complete regret that none entered as unceremoniously as he did.

A young gentleman and lady came to the threshold, it was plain to be seen that they were bride and groom. It was not just the thing to separate them and possibly an exception might be made in their favor; but no, the sight did not move the sexton's heart a particle, he cried grimly as usual "men to the left; women to the right."

At eleven o'clock there was a great many people in the church, and among them several prominent citizens. There was a well-known grain merchant, the collector of customs, a printer's apprentice, two or three spiritualists from the State street tabernacle, a dealer in milk and many others. Just as the doors were about to be closed, a young, light spiritualist sauntered into the meeting and glided up near the speaker's stand, looking like a lost ghost. He was followed by a spirit of 250 pounds avoirdupois, who settled himself in a corner and went to sleep in a very business-like manner. Five motherly old ladies dressed in the Quaker garb took seats on a raised bench at the end of the church, the doors were closed, and the congregation sat waiting for the spirit to move somebody to say something.

Five minutes passed, no one spoke a word; ten minutes went by, still a silence, unbroken save by loud breathing, which proved to be the sound of the heavy spirit was peacefully slumbering. Fifteen minutes rolled by on leaden wings, and the stillness was becoming so irksome that if some one had arisen and read from a last year's almanac, he would have earned the gratitude of the congregation.

At last a lady arose, took off her Quaker bonnet and spoke in a kind, sweet voice, words of religion that any mother might have taught her children. It was done in just such a way, as though she had a family about her and was telling them how to guide their future lives. There was no text, no formality, no affectation; but her words breathed forth a spirit of devotion and godliness very beautiful to witness.

Clergymen half a century ago preached just such sermons as was listened to last Sunday in the Quaker meeting-house; but did the minister of to-day so talk, he would be criticised as not one of the "progressive" stamp. Therefore Rachael Hicks' words were refreshing. All she said bore the true ring of fervor. There was a veneration and solemnity in her mentioning the name of the Deity, grateful to the ear. When Miss Hicks sat down at the conclusion of her remarks and no one seemed inclined to speak, the silence became impressive, and when ten minutes passed without a word, the people began to move uneasily in their seats. As no one appeared inclined to speak, Friend Rachael Hicks again arose, and said:

"While sitting here I have been led to believe that there are those present who would like to know what are our ideas in regard to original sin. There are very many people who believe that the transgressions of Adam and Eve are visited upon the children. I cannot think that, and as a reason I take the words of our Saviour while on earth, 'For of such is the kingdom of Heaven,' and 'unless you become like these little children you cannot see the face of God,' or words to that effect. I think we all enter this world pure and free from sin, remaining so until we arrive at years of discretion; and the words of the scriptures prove it to my mind. Still we do not take the Bible as a rule of faith, but rather as a secondary mode of instruction. This, I believe, is the belief of the society to which I belong."

Friend Rachael then sat down, and silence supreme settled upon the congregation, and remained there until, one by one, the visitors and worshippers passed out into the world. So ended the gathering of the Friends.

Uncomfortable Jewelry.

HOW A LITTLE FALLS LADY WAS HANDCUFFED.

An amusing incident occurred in Little Falls the other day, which created considerable innocent fun at the expense of a pleasant young lady.

Officer Becker of Herkimer conveyed a man from Utica to Little Falls who was charged by a crazy man with larceny. After arriving at his destination the officer was sent back to Herkimer to summon the principal witness. Before leaving Little Falls he deposited his handcuffs in the telegraph office at the depot for safe keeping, not caring to carry them about in his pocket, and left for Herkimer on the day express about noon. He had hardly arrived in that village when he received a telegram, saying, "Come back to the Falls quick."

There was no train going east within two hours, and a reply to that effect was telegraphed back. Another telegram was received, imploring him to go back to Little Falls as quickly as possible.

Officer Becker waited anxiously for the train, fearing that something dreadful had happened in connection with the prisoner. When he arrived at Little Falls he was dragged into the telegraph office as quickly as possible, and without a word of explanation being given the key of his handcuffs was demanded. Officer Becker's laugh came in just about this time, and his anxious mind was relieved. He enjoyed the laugh heartily, but a young lady sitting in a shady corner of the telegraph office felt like anything else but merriment. It appears that with woman's natural curiosity, the young lady had been examining the steel bracelets, which were never intended to encircle fair hands like hers. By accident or design one of the young lady's friends closed the handcuffs, and the young lady was subjected to the mortification of wearing the inelegant bracelets until Officer Becker arrived. She smiled through her tears as the officer entered the telegraph office, and will never meddle with such dangerous articles again.

Winning a Widow.

TWO ENTHUSIASTIC ADVERSARIES OF A MINNESOTA WIDOW RACING FOR A LICENSE TO MARRY HER.

A correspondent writes to the Mankato (Minn.) Union of a widow who resides in a certain town in Winona county, who had been wooed two young striplings, the one ten and the other eleven years her junior. Both lads happened to meet the lady at the same time, and both were on the errand of deciding upon the day for celebrating the nuptials, as each had the encouragement to think himself the favored suitor. The widow herself was undecided, and a scene of tears gave a momentary relief to the heart-throbbings of the two young lovers. Finally she chose the younger of the two, and they parted for the night. In the morning the discarded lover bethought himself of his photograph and ring, still in the possession of the lady. He went to the lady to obtain them, and again sought favor in her eyes. She yielded and promised if he should get his license first she would marry him. He left on the afternoon train for Winona to procure the license, and noticed his rival on board, who was on the same errand, but evidently knew nothing of the new bargain. As soon as the train arrived, the lover who had the latest promise rushed for the clerk's office and obtained his license, and just as he was retiring the rival entered and applied for a license to marry the same woman. Our hero who had obtained the license was bound to press his advantage, and instead of waiting for the morning train, which would bear his rival home, he footed it home through the mud the same night, and secured his prize the next morning.

A Rat Stamped.

A week ago, says the Monmouth Democrat, the roads in the lower part of Howell township were literally covered with rat tracks.

These tracked marks the migration of the rats in the night. The movement occupied two nights, and so closely did they travel that the entire width of the sandy road was covered with the foot marks, even the rats were also marked in this way. It is certain that the two companies must have numbered several hundred individuals. The place where these facts were witnessed was not far from Lane's Saw Mill. It is no new thing for these vermin to migrate or change quarters in this manner. But inasmuch as they must comprise the assembled occupants of many places, and as these places in this portion of the pines are very widely scattered, the whole affair is not without singular interest. How do they communicate intentions so as to act with such unanimity? This stream of rat life was made up of contributions from houses and barns and perhaps mills from varying distances. Then comes the sagacity of taking two nights for the tramps, that is, of dividing into two companies; for this was assuredly a wise precaution against the danger of being destroyed. It must be confessed that there is more in this matter than any one's philosophy is capable of answering. In Europe it is pretty well known that the barn rats are accustomed to these migrations in the spring of the year. But beyond the observed facts, how little does any one know.

Somnambulism.

Belshazzar Smith had a very bad and very dangerous habit of walking in his sleep. His family feared that, during some of his somnambulistic saunterings he would charge out of the window and kill himself; so they persuaded him to sleep with his little brother William, and to tie one end of a rope around his body, and the other end around little William. The very first night after this arrangement was made, Belshazzar dreamed that a burglar was pursuing him with a dagger. So he crept over to William's side of the bed, stepped over his slumbering form, jumped out on the floor, and slid under the bed. He stayed there a while, fast asleep, and then, his nightmare having changed, he emerged from the other side of the bed, and got under the covers in his old place. The rope, it will be observed, was under the bed, and it was hauled taut, too. Early in the morning, Belshazzar, about half awake, scrouged over against William. To his surprise the movement jerked William off from the bed. Belshazzar leaped out to ascertain the cause of the phenomenon, and at the same time his brother disappeared under the bed. Belshazzar, hardly yet awake, was scared, and he dived beneath the bed; as he did so he heard William skirl across the blankets over his head. Once more he rushed out, just in time to perceive William glide over the other side. Belshazzar just then felt the rope pulling on him. He comprehended the situation at once, and disengaged himself.

The Largest Telescope in the United States.

Messrs. Alvin Clark & Sons are making, at their establishment in Cambridgeport, Mass., the largest refracting telescope in the United States for the Naval Observatory in Washington. It will cost $46,000, and has an object glass twenty-six inches in diameter, being eleven inches larger than the one at Harvard University. The glass alone when finished will be worth $23,000. The two glasses—for it requires two to make an object glass—weighed in the rough about two hundred and fifty pounds and cost $7,000, about $28 per pound. They arrived in this country about six months ago, from Birmingham, England, and ever since the work of polishing and preparing them has been continued unintermittently. Over fifty pounds have been cut from the first glass, which now weighs one hundred and ten pounds, and the other glass has been reduced to seventy-three pounds, and neither will vary much from these weights when finished. It is expected the telescope will be ready for mounting in 1874.—Boston Times.

A Double-Barreled Vocalist.

The Oswego Palladium announces the coming to that city of a musical notoriety, who sings two separate and distinct parts—bass and tenor—at the same time. He proposes to give both parts of any tune simultaneously. The Palladium is suspicious of being sold, and relates the following experience:

We were once invited by the Hon. Charles North, of this city, to see a dog "with two tails—one out of each end." He took us into his tannery and showed us a venerable hound of his who was quietly chewing the amputated tail of a raw hide. We have forgiven the Hon. Charles North for this high inflation and sudden collapse of our curiosity, but we can never forget the circumstance.

Water in Ancient Rome.

In old Rome there were nine aqueducts to supply the city with water, and the amount furnished for each inhabitant could hardly have been less than three hundred gallons for each person daily, or more than six times as much as is supplied to each person in London at the present time. One of their aqueducts was fifty-four miles long, and one forty-two miles long. No modern city ever had such perfect arrangements for baths and perfect cleanliness as Rome.

A mammoth century plant.

A mammoth century plant, forty feet in height and weighing three and a half tons, was recently shipped from Florida to parties in New York. The plant is on the eve of blooming a second time, and is therefore nearly 200 years old. Its leaves extend over an area the diameter of which is not less than eighteen feet, while the central shaft or column on which the blooms are to appear, though only a few weeks old, has already attained an altitude of fifteen feet. It is still growing at the rate of about six inches a day, and will continue to do so for about three weeks longer, when all its upper portion will become clothed with a mass of magnificent bell-shaped blossoms of purest white, hanging in dense clusters, and extending for a space of not less than four feet from the apex downward.

A mammoth diving bell is being constructed in San Francisco.

with which it is intended to prospect the reported golden sands on the northern coast of California. Several attempts have been made to mine this locality, which is now below water mark, in the black sand of the seashore; but the shortness of the time allowed the miners between the ebb and flow of the tide, and the great distance over which the auriferous sand has to be conveyed, have hitherto deterred speculators from entering into any scheme for obtaining the precious metal from that source. It is estimated that under the new plan a hundred tons an hour can be raised.

Moonlight Excursion.

The East Kingston Boat Club will give its Second Annual Moonlight Excursion on the evening of the 24th. The particulars will be duly announced.

Accident.

The young son of George Townsend, of Upper Kingston, accidentally broke his leg while jumping over the fence. Dr. Van Rensselaer attended, and the boy is now doing well.

Stuck.

The door of the vault of the State of New York National Bank got out of order on Friday, so the bank officers were forced to telegraph to New York for some one to come and open it.

Coal Arrivals.

On Friday seventy-one canal boats laden with nine thousand and ten tons of coal reached tide water at Edenville, through the Delaware & Hudson canal.

On Saturday fifty-eight canal boats laden with seven thousand three hundred and seventy-eight tons of coal reached tide water.

A Little Fire.

An alarm of fire was started about half-past nine o'clock Sunday evening, caused by the burning of a shanty on Stuyvesant street, occupied by some canalers as a stable. The firemen responded promptly and "marched up the hill" only to "march back again," for the little shanty was in ruins before they reached it. Undoubtedly some mischievous person fired the building.

Election of Officers.

At a regular meeting of United Temple of Honor No. 50, held on Wednesday evening, June 5th, the following officers were duly installed: W. C. T. Denig, G. Walker, W. F. T. T. Scott, M. L. W. R. H. Van Hoevenberg, W. A. R. Alonzo J. Freer, W. F. R. J. Jas. E. Lowe, Jr., W. F. John Dubois, W. U. H. B. Lathrop, W. D. U. Frank Worden, W. G. C. Peter Hollinger, W. S. H. W. Tibbals, P. W. C. F. Thomas Hall.

The Temple of Honor has for its object the extension of the principles of temperance, and meets every Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Union League room over Hendricks' shoe store on Wall street.

The London Times

On Monday, May 27th, in its criticism on the paintings now on exhibition in the Royal Academy, London, this speaks of a picture from the case of a Roudouter:

"A new name—Jervis McEntee—attached to a landscape (330) of unpretending, but rare quality, 'November,' with the appropriate line, 'Shade deepening over shade the country round emulous,' is, we understand, American. The picture shows what is so rare, an imaginative feeling of the subject; a scene of low hills, with a foreground of scrubby woodland, its winter soil of brown here and there enlivened, but very sparingly, with a touch of autumnal scarlet and gold, and a horizon of higher hills of sombre indigo. The picture is too low in tone and too sombre in sentiment to attract much attention, but it deserves and will reward study, and affixes a mark in the memory of the painter's name."

New Fashion.

Several of the young ladies of upper Kingston have been visiting the city of New York, and now while regaling their lady friends with the delicious gossip of sights there seen, throw them in a terrible twitter by stating how the latest fashion for wearing the hat, or bonnet, is by tying it firmly with a bow on the back of the neck, low down at that. This certainly is a horrible fashion for bald headed women who haven't the wherewith to purchase a first-class lot of hair, but notwithstanding, our young ladies have expressed their satisfaction in regard to the fashion, in such words as "splendid, elegant, beautiful," &c., so the good people of the city must not be astonished if on some pleasant day they see our girls promenading the streets with their hats securely fastened somewhere near the place where the spinal column ends at the neck—or thereabouts—much after the fashion in which a turtle carries his shell.

The Jail.

The jail has been pretty well represented for the past week or two. Its records show that 39 persons, besides its regular occupants, have been housed under its roof within the past fourteen days. Wednesday seven colored females were locked up, some for drunkenness, and others on a charge of larceny. The four who were charged with larceny were taken before the Recorder on Wednesday night, and a hearing had; but owing to rather a chaotic state of things in the Recorder's office our reporter has been unable to learn what became of the case. One white woman was also arrested the other day because she also was somewhat intoxicated. This woman complained very hard of her accusers, and said "noble ye think I'm drunk, ole fella; but yer 'tial o'; by I ain't! Ise o'y (hie) little weak!" We do not think it strange that these poor drunkards should wonder why they should be persecuted, for they think it persecution, when some of the city officials are openly and publicly guilty of the very same acts for which they are punished.

Walkill Valley Railway.

RONDOUT, June 8th, 1872.
TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY FREEMAN:
I made a proposition to F. O. Norton, asking his consent to the laying of the track of the Walkill Valley Railway Company temporarily over his ground, agreeing to remove the same within a given time, to be agreed upon between us.
The following is his reply:
"NEW YORK, June 6th, 1872.
Hon. THOMAS CORNELL,
President of the Walkill Valley Railway:
DEAR SIR:—Upon consultation with my counsel I have concluded not to entertain your proposition.
Very Respectfully, your old servant,
F. O. NORTON."

This must delay the extension of the Road to Kingston until the courts decide the case. But for this interference, for which alone Mr. Norton is responsible, the road would have been completed to Kingston in thirty days. The conduct of Mr. Norton in destroying the property of the Company, while it did not interfere with his works for the time being, is very unkind, to say the least.

Very Respectfully,
THOMAS CORNELL,
President Walkill Valley Railway Co.

Sabbath Observance.

Rev. J. Y. Bates on Sunday morning preached a very earnest and forcible sermon on the observance of the Sabbath. His remarks were particularly devoted to the violation of the law against liquor-selling on the Sabbath, which is prohibited by law and works forfeiture of license. Rev. E. D. Ledyard also referred to this subject, and Rev. Father Coyle, of St. Mary's, preached a very earnest sermon two weeks ago on the subject of Temperance, in which he strongly condemned the practice of liquor selling on the Sabbath. A very powerful public sentiment is developing in the city for the closing of liquor stores on Sundays, and it is probable that the whole religious portion of the community will unite in efforts to effect such a result.

Obsequies of the Late Lyman W. Rouse.

The remains of the late Lyman W. Rouse of Chicago, formerly of Rondout, whose death was noted in Saturday's issue, arrived in this city on Saturday forenoon, in charge of Mr. Henry Davall, a member of the Masonic Fraternity and Secretary of the Chicago Masonic Board of Relief, accompanied from Troy by Mr. Albert Moffat, also a Masonic brother, formerly of Chicago. The deceased was an active Mason and Knight Templar, and was also connected with the order of Odd Fellows.

The funeral was held at the Presbyterian church on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The edifice being crowded with a vast concourse of people, many of whom had known Mr. Rouse when living here, who thus testified to their sympathy with the stricken friends in their affliction. The services at the church were conducted by Rev. E. D. Ledyard, assisted by Rev. James Cooper of the Rondout Baptist church and Rev. A. M. Arcularius of the Port Ewen Reformed church. Rev. Mr. Ledyard preached the sermon, giving a sketch of the deceased's life, his many excellent traits of character, his exemplary Christian conduct, and alluding to the high estimation in which he was held by all who knew him.

After the services at the church, a procession was formed with the Masons on the right followed by the Rondout Commandery Knights Templars, in full uniform. The hearse carrying the corpse followed, the pall-bearers walking on either side and a guard of honor of eight members of Rondout Commandery, K. T., marching on either side of the pall-bearers. The Masons, comprising members from this city and vicinity, numbered about one hundred and fifty, and the Knights Templars, who turned out as an escort, about forty men. Following the hearse was a large number of carriages containing mourners, friends and acquaintances. The procession proceeded to Montpelier, where the solemn Masonic burial service was conducted by Rondout Lodge, No. 243, George B. Hibbard, W. M. A large number of people gathered on the spot to witness the last expression of Masonic regard.

Fourth of July Hop.

A grand Fourth of July hop will be held at the hotel of J. C. Hardenbergh, West Hurley, on Independence day. Good music will be provided and every facility afforded for having a first-rate time.

A Row at West Hurley.

A correspondent sends us an account of a row at West Hurley. The principals were two young men in the employ of C. Waters, who, like the Kilkeny cats, "bit and fit and bit," but with a different result; for instead of there being nothing left but their tails, etc., with bunched eyes and swollen heads there was much more of them than when they went into the scuffle. A Herculean blacksmith separated the parties, and peace reigned again in the moral town of West Hurley. The young men ought to be ashamed of themselves.

Mt. Pleasant.

Many improvements are being made at Mt. Pleasant. The old hotel has been refitted in fine style by the new proprietor, Mr. Nestor, of New York city. Over the hill is a fine trout pond, well stocked with speckled beauties. There is also a dairy house, and a house for poultry, something quite new in that section of the country. The grounds and garden have been laid out with great care by an old Texan ranger, in truly tropical style. This place is quiet enough to suit the most retired of disquietudes; the mountain scenery grand and picturesque; the water clear and sparkling like champagne; the air pure and bracing, while the Esopus creek sends its turbulent waters swiftly by, making it a most delightful summer retreat.

Oh Poughkeepsie!

The Highland, Ulster County correspondent of the New Paltz Independent says: "The city of Poughkeepsie sent over their express wagon the other day; it consisted of a skeleton cart mounted with a dry goods box. We didn't know the nature of the humble vehicle, until we heard the sonorous yell of the driver, 'Poughkeepsie city express-a-s-a.' It didn't get any trade—Pang Yang can do better in the express line."

That is another "Ulster County Horror," Poughkeepsie style.

OUR FREE PARLIAMENT.

The Old and the New Road.
MR. EDITOR:—In a letter by D. C. McMillan, published in the FREEMAN of the 7th, the causes which lead a Democrat to accept the Cincinnati platform are, in a measure, given, and I have thought that perhaps a few paragraphs showing why and how a sincere Republican is led to the same point may prove of some interest.

There was a time when all roads, though starting from the most remote places, led to Rome, and while Mr. McMillan's road begins from where mine does, both lead directly to Cincinnati. I trust the time is not distant when all roads will lead thither, as of old they led to Rome.
My road may start in Kansas; but I never knew it had a state-rights pavement or track, though I do know it has been at times an underground affair. Its terminus was then in Canada. But now the purposes for which that route was built are dead. Slavery is dead, and all the principles for which the travelers struggled are fully accomplished, being part of the Constitution itself. So, now we have made a new terminus at Cincinnati, for the old road really leads no whither, save to self-destruction. All the travelers upon it are no more going that way for the general good, but for the sake of aggrandizing one man, and that man, if he may be judged by the past four years, is the worst foe to the liberties of his country who has lived since Caesar. Like Caesar he fought for his country rendering it great service, whereby he won esteem and gratitude from the people, and now, still like his prototype, he seeks to overturn the rights of the land for which he fought. These are general assertions; let us look at particular facts, as we shall presently.

The opposite poles of the political magnet—democracy and centralization. The first means a distribution of governmental powers, and the latter, whatever it may mean, leads to a monarchy. No people have yet lost their liberties at a sudden bound. The loss has been gradual. Some smooth adventurer, ambitious, unprincipled, intent only on his personal aggrandizement, hungry for power, and, though subtle, apparently open and fair, promising large results of good from the power he takes from the people and appropriates to himself—such are they who have ever been the worst foes of republics—such are they who have smilingly withdrawn the liberties of the unsuspecting people. Napoleon the Little managed first to be elected President of France; once elected the mask was thrown off, and the Empire declared. The blow Brutus struck Caesar was a blow of democracy against centralization. Caesar had usurped the powers of the people and Brutus struck in the name of liberty. So gradually do nations sometimes lose their rights that they do not awake to their danger until it is too late.

During the recent slaveholder's Rebellion the majority of the people of this Republic consented to an unconstitutional usurpation of powers on the part of the general government. They saw that they had been over-powers of their liberties in not providing means for the government to sustain itself in such an emergency, and Congress legalized the acts of Lincoln. Throughout the war the tendency of the Republic was toward centralization. It was necessarily so.

But now that necessity no longer exists, nor has it existed for four years. At the conclusion of the Rebellion we naturally looked for a different policy on the part of the government. We looked to the part of the government, its assumed powers, and settle itself in its not too obtrusive place. But we have been disappointed, for on the contrary, it has loomed up more powerful than ever. At the instigation of Gen. Grant it has proposed to establish check-banks in every post-office, that it may clutch the hard earnings of the poor and so, by holding the depositors at its mercy, control their votes. It has belittled itself by going into the printing business—printing business-cards on envelopes. Tiro Gen. Grant it has proposed to buy all the telegraph-lines and so have power to hold censorship over every despatch. A bill was offered in Congress, understood to be favored by the President, to take the ballot-boxes out of the hands of the people and give them to the office-holders to control at their pleasure, so that any bad man in power might make himself President as long as he liked.

Surely this is centralization of the worst type, and it is no wonder that the people who are conservative and jealous of their liberties, look with distrust upon Gen. Grant. Yet these cited instances are only illustrations of the policy of the present Administration, to which policy the Liberal Republicans strongly object as Republicans and citizens of a free country.

The old road to reform leads thither no longer. The reforms are accomplished and the travelers are all turned back on the way to centralization, to an aristocratic method of government, to fraudulent sales of arms, to nepotism, to gift-taking, to corruption in high places, and to the long list of evils which always follow the ascent of a party to one man.

The new road is all that could be desired. It leads to making the one term principle the law of the land—the principle to which Gen. Grant has adhered himself on becoming President—it leads to decentralization, giving back the usurped powers to the people; it leads to an honest administration of affairs, and a return to a democratic government as it was conceived by Jefferson.

The convention at Cincinnati was intended from the outset as an expression by many in the Republican party that they were awake to the reverse as well as the obverse side of the policy of Gen. Grant. It is idle to say it was merely a convention of disappointed office-seekers and sore-heads. Surely it does not have that appearance from the present outlook, for it is clear that the great body of the people are desirous of having an Administration which will exemplify less of the central and more of the centrifugal force.

Liberal Republicans will not so far forget the permanency of the results of the war as to put the government into the hands of any man who favored the Rebellion. They will suffer many abuses rather than do that. But if not asked to endorse other than a man intent upon retaining the full victory of the war, the spirit of true democracy will, in November, pass over the land from sea to sea.

Truly yours,
A REPUBLICAN.

(This Cut Illustrates the manner of Using

DR. PIERCE'S
Fountain Nasal Injector, OR

DOUCHE.

This instrument is especially designed for the perfect application of

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY.

It is the only form of instrument yet invented with which fluid medicine can be carried high up and perfectly applied to all parts of the affected nasal passage, and the chambers or cavities constituting the mucous membrane, in which disease frequently exists, and from which the catarrhal discharge generally proceeds. The want of success in treating Catarrh heretofore has arisen largely from the impossibility of applying remedies to these cavities and chambers by any of the ordinary methods. This obstacle, however, is now entirely overcome by the invention of this instrument. In using this instrument, the fluid is carried by its own weight, (one snuffing or pumping being required,) up one nostril in a full pneumatic flow, passes into the highest portion of the nasal passage, passes into and thoroughly cleanses all the tubes and chambers connected therewith, disinfects all the opposite nostril. It is pleasant and so simple that any one can use it.

Full and explicit directions accompany each instrument. When used with this instrument, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures all cases of "Cold in the Head" by a few applications.

Symptoms of Catarrh. Frequent headaches, discharge falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, thick mucus, purulent, offensive, &c.
In others a dryness, dry, watery, weak or inflamed eyes, stopping up or obstruction of nasal passages, burning in ears, deafness, ringing in ears, loss of voice, altered nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired or total deprivation of sense of smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, loss of appetite, indigestion, enlarged tonsils, tickling cough, &c. Only a few of these symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, when used with the constitutional treatment which is recommended in the pamphlet that wraps each bottle of the Remedy, is a perfect specific for this loathsome disease, and the proprietor offers, in good faith, $500 reward for a case he can not cure. The Remedy is mild and pleasant to use, containing no strong or cruel drugs or poisons. The Catarrh Remedy is sold at 50 cents. BOTTLE at 50 cents, by all Druggists, or either will be mailed by proprietor on receipt of 60 cents. R. V. PIERCE, M. D.,

The Greatest Excitement
SINCE THE FLOOD!
A. M. Low's
PROCLAMATION
FOR 1872,
READ IT!

A. M. LOW, the popular Boot and Shoe Dealer of No. 19 Wall Street, City of Kingston, desires the people to know that he has stocked his store for the spring and summer of 1872 with all the very latest styles of Boots and shoes, which he is now offering at a figure that is an inducement for all in want of out gear to extend to him their patronage. In the city of New York, he introduces for the season a superior article of hand-made shoes, manufactured by Messrs. HANAN & REDDISH, of New York City. They are decidedly by the "nobbiest" style ever placed in the market, made from the very best material and of the very best finish, and for which he is the sole agent in the City of Kingston. Besides these he has all other kinds of market of all the various shapes, styles, quality and prices.

Low has also the exclusive sale in this city of We-men's and Misses' Shoes manufactured by Reynolds Brothers of Utica, and Munson & Co. of Albany, articles celebrated for their beauty, finish, durability and gentleness of wearing them in shape. He is selling heaps of them daily, which is the best advertisement they can have, for everybody who buys them recommends them to their neighbors. As usual his stock is full in all the other grades of the line and will be kept so during the season.

Boys, Youth, Misses, children and infants all go to Low's to get their feet clothed, for there they can and a stock to select from that beats anything else of New York City. He has also a large stock of clothing and hats, and is obliged to stop with the simple announcement that he has the LARGEST STOCK of WHOLESALE and RETAIL, and that he is determined to keep them in the line of business, and not seeking a monopoly, invites competition from all sources, confident that he shall at last make his store worthy of patronage and one of the leading features of the new City of Kingston.

Respectfully, A. M. LOW,
No. 19 Wall Street, Kingston.

THE IMPROVED WHEELER & WILSON
Again Improved.
Pleasant in our motto, and with this end in view, we have so improved the FEEDING DEVICE as to make it so simple, while at the same time much less skill and care are required in its management. Neither the thread nor the cloth require holding, and both the thickest and thinnest goods are sewed perfectly. Seams are crossed with greater ease, and the work guided with scarce an effort. The Distinctive Feature of this Machine is the ROTARY HOOK to carry the loop of the upper thread around the spool containing the under, making the lock stitch alike on both sides of fabric, thereby doing away with the vibratory motion of the shuttle, the tension upon the under thread, and all devices for taking up slack thread, necessary on all other two-thread machines. The public have endorsed these principles by purchasing 50,000 of our Machines.
SOLD BY INSTALLMENTS, WITHOUT EXTRA CHARGE.

MORTGAGE SALE.
WHEREAS, default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured by a mortgage dated the 23d day of September, 1871, executed by ASTOR, LENOX & TILDEN, of the town of Kingston, County of Ulster, and state of New York, to Edgar B. Newkirk, of the same place, and which mortgage was recorded in the Clerk's office of said county of Ulster, in Book No. 108 of Mortgages, on page 125, on the 24th day of October, 1871, at 1 hour, P. M., said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the principal money of the sum of $200, two hundred dollars; and whereas, the amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of notice, is the sum of $208.25; two hundred and eight dollars and twenty-five cents; to wit, $200 principal and $8.25 interest, and which said amount claimed to be unpaid on said mortgage. That there has been no suit or proceedings in law or equity to collect the amount of said unpaid balance on said mortgage.
Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and duly recorded as aforesaid, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described, at Public Auction, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Kingston, in the County of Ulster, on the TWENTY-SIXTH DAY OF JUNE, 1872, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day. The said premises are described in said mortgage as follows: All that certain lot or lots of land situated on the southerly side of Apple street as per map of lands of E. B. Newkirk at Kingston, and is bounded as follows: Northerly by the lot of said Apple street, easterly by lot conveyed to J. M. Carson, southerly by land of said Newkirk, and westerly by dock street; said lot being sixty (60) feet front on Apple street, and runs back same width one hundred (100) feet on Rock street. Also all other lot situated at the angle adjoining the above lot and bounded as follows: Northerly by the lot of said Apple street, easterly by land of said E. B. Newkirk, southerly by same, and westerly by said Rock street; said lot being forty (40) feet front on Rock street, and runs back same width one hundred (100) feet.
Dated April 1st, 1872.
